Message from the President
Hon. Bea Ann Smith

First, I want to thank you for granting me the honor of serving as your President. Next, I want to thank Diana Eagon and her “Minnesota friendly” Host Committee for the exciting and memorable (NAWJ Annual Conference) they organized in Minneapolis in October.

As we begin a new year of activity, it is good to reflect on what we want for this organization. My hope is that NAWJ will enable each of us to be more courageous in fulfilling our judicial roles as leaders. Each time we, as judges, stand up for our ideals and strike out against injustice, we send forth a tiny ripple of hope—and that ripple grows every day. It is from countless individual acts of daring that our justice system is improved. In Minneapolis, they introduced Diana Murphy, our Honoree of the Year, as “Diana the Courageous.” For almost 25 years, the members of this organization have been performing acts of courage—locally, quietly, and daily. And then once a year we come together to share our stories. We share our strengths, and our wisdom. come together to share the healing power of our laughter.

Judge Murphy said our critics once thought NAWJ was a “foolhardy operation,” yet we have proved them wrong. We have overcome financial crises, loss of our national staff, and the difficulties of staying organized across this expansive nation. Today we have the experienced and competent staff we need to support the many projects and ideas you, our members, keep developing. We have a reenergized group of District Directors who will take our projects and our programs back to their districts, states, and communities and implement them. We have a dedicated group of officers who will support and guide

Reflexions and Visions 2002 is a memory, hopefully a pleasant one for those brave enough to journey to Minneapolis in October. For those of you who expected snow, we did not disappoint you. Did you know there were judges who preferred to walk outside rather than in our skyways for exercise? Maybe this was you?

To begin, the Conference was such a success. From the welcomes by our president, Judge Karla Moskowitz, and Minnesota’s Chief Justice, Kathleen Blatz, to the final swearing in of our new officers and directors by Justice Joan Dempsey Klein, you were kept busy. For those of you who wanted innovative programs—we had them.

We certainly have many people to be proud of in this organization.

Specifically, I am sure you all took home with you a better understanding of the human genome and the possible ethical considerations we must ponder when making our decisions in the future. As it has been said by Oliver Wendell Holmes, a mind stretched by a new idea never returns to its same dimension, so you too have returned to your jurisdictions with changed dimensions.

Furthermore, you were able to explore unconscious prejudice. I am certain that Martha Nussbaum had you thinking about disgust, shame, and the law when you realized that the woman with the parasol and the table tops were the same. And what about personal courage? I me in the year ahead. Forty-five of our members who attended the International Association of Women Judges Conference in Dublin (May 2002) have fostered a new vision of international outreach for NAWJ. We have an expanded and enthusiastic Resource Board committed to developing economic soundness for this organization. We have new partnerships with other like-minded organizations, thanks to the untiring efforts of my predecessor, Karla Moskowitz. The State of our Union is good!

Martha Nussbaum suggested in Minneapolis that judges are the "working philosophers" of our times. We have proved this by developing our Color of Justice and So You Want to Be a Judge projects. We have completed our Removing Obstacles to Justice for Immigrants program and are continuing to move along with the remarkable Genome Justice project, parts of which Judge Gladys Kessler presented in a stunning program in Minneapolis. We have addressed the special needs of Women in Prison, with the courageous judges in Maryland leading the way. These projects and programs are ready for your use. Please plan to present one of our projects, or use one of our training programs, in your district this coming year!

I ask each of you to join in the effort to get all of our members connected by email this year, to use our website, and to help us put forth the face of this extraordinary organization on that website.

On a more somber note, I know that the aftermath of terror and the prospect of war may threaten our adherence to the principles of equality, civil liberty, and due process. We as judges must work tirelessly and fearlessly to preserve these bedrock principles. It will be a time for large acts of courage, as Judge Kessler demonstrated last August by requiring the Justice Department to release the names of more than 1000 people detained in the investigation of 9/11. Judge Kessler wrote, "Difficult times such as these have always tested our fidelity to the core democratic values of openness, government accountability, and the rule of law." 1 Yes, we are judges of courage and NAWJ fosters our individual acts of courage.

I pledge to you that your Board of Directors will strive to serve you and this organization with honor and enthusiasm until we come in great numbers to strive to serve you and this organization with honor acts of courage.

Minneapolis Conference Wrap Up

do not believe there was a dry eye in the room when Ann Bancroft finished her presentation about her courageous journey.

In breakout sessions you discussed collegiality, women in prisons, privacy, electronic discovery, human rights, terrorism, judicial decision-making, and judicial independence. You visited courtrooms, pro se centers, and heard about court initiatives in family, juvenile, and drug courts. You traveled by our lakes and rivers, saw our historic, and not so historic, buildings, and visited our women’s prison and Hazeldon treatment facility. You cheered during the reception at Saks and shopped the night away. You toured the Walker Art Museum and some of you ventured into the sculpture garden and enjoyed a play at the Guthrie. You were able to see the Mississippi from the reception at the Science Museum. Who could forget the Reception and Banquet honoring Judge Diana Murphy and Bunny Baum?

We certainly have many people to be proud of in this organization. On the final day, you heard from Justice Rosalie Wahl and our new President Bea Ann Smith. And I was the most surprised to receive, from NAWJ, a beautiful Waterford Crystal Vase with the wonderful inscription Diana Eagon Our Friend, Thank You, NAWJ 2002. Thank you so much, you were all so kind with your compliments and support.

I had a wonderful time hosting the Conference, yet I did not do so alone. All of the host judges and volunteers were there helping, directing, and working. The Friends Committee made the educational programs a success through their tremendous efforts. And frankly, it is because of all of your efforts that this conference was such a success—I thank you!

I hope that you all made new friends, renewed your friendships from past years, had fun, and enjoyed our hospitality. I am looking forward to seeing you all again in 2003 in Washington, DC.

Lifetime Achievement Award

Hon. Vanessa Ruiz received the Judge Ricardo M. Urbina Lifetime Achievement Award presented by the Hispanic Bar Association of the District of Columbia. The award was presented to her on November 14 at the Equal Justice Awards Dinner celebrating the HBA’s 25th Anniversary at the Ritz Carlton in D.C.

This prestigious award was bestowed to Judge Ruiz for providing “Friendship, Guidance, and Leadership to the Legal and Latino Communities through Public Service.” Upon accepting the award Judge Ruiz said, “I think I am too young to receive a lifetime achievement award. I take it as encouragement to make efforts that, someday, might really merit it.”

NAWJ Excellence in Service Award

Hon. Karla Moskowitz

At the ABA Judicial Division Awards Luncheon on August 9, 2003, NAWJ’s Excellence in Service Award was presented to a judge at the forefront of making NAWJ’s goals of equal justice and excellent judicial education a reality—the Honorable Shirley Tolentino.

As NAWJ President, 1996-97, Judge Tolentino forged ties with organizations that have similar goals, enabled the production of our organizational video, Changing the Face of Justice, and was instrumental in the expansion of our Resource Board. Judge Tolentino is a graduate of the College of Saint Elizabeth, Seton Hall Law School and received her L.L.M from New York University School of Law. Professionally, Judge Tolentino was, and remains, a trailblazer and a role model.

She was the first African-American woman to sit full-time as a Municipal Court Judge in Jersey City, as Presiding Municipal Court Judge in Jersey City, and as Judge on the New Jersey Superior Court, her current position. Judge Tolentino. She recently introduced NAWJ’s Color of Justice program in New Jersey. This program encourages minority high school students to consider pursuing careers in the law. It was such a success that it is being expanded to include follow-up mentoring and is a model for other jurisdictions. Judge Tolentino continues to lead the pursuit of justice for all.

NAWJ Honoree of the Year

Hon. Diana E. Murphy, a judge on the United States Court of Appeals 8th Circuit, was named NAWJ’s Honoree of the Year at the 2002 Annual Conference in Minnesota. The award is given to a member who has assisted women judges to become more proficient in their profession, helped to solve the legal, social, and ethical problems associated with the judiciary, and worked to increase the number of women judges.

Judge Murphy received her J.D., magna cum laude, from the University of Minnesota, where she was editor of the Law Review. Her outstanding career includes tenure as president of the Federal Judges Association, chair of the board of the American Judicature Society, board member of the Federal Judicial Center, and chair of the Judges Advisory Committee to the ABA Standing Committee on Ethics and Professional Responsibility. An active member of NAWJ, she organized the 8th Circuit Gender Fairness Task Force and served as chair of the Judicial Council’s Fairness Implementation Committee. In 2001, she was the first woman to receive the Devitt Community Distinguished Service to Justice Award.

Judge Murphy also is involved as a leader in numerous community organizations including the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges, the Bush Foundation, the Minnesota Opera, and the University of Minnesota Foundation. NAWJ is grateful for Judge Murphy’s selfless and generous support of its mission.

Distinguished Service Award Winner

The Florence K. Murray Award is traditionally given to an individual who has demonstrated an outstanding commitment to NAWJ’s goals and this year’s recipient is no different. On October 19, 2002, this prestigious award was presented to long time NAWJ friend Bunny Baum. A graduate of Brooklyn College, Bunny studied art at the Barnes Foundation in Merion, Pennsylvania and ran her own businesses. She became involved in the court system in the early 1980s and is currently the Director of Judicial Services and Court Related Education for the State of Pennsylvania, a position which makes constant demands on her time. Nevertheless, Bunny has been tireless in her support of NAWJ. Whether helping us with a conference, negotiating contracts, or participating in interviews, she has tackled each task with enthusiasm and a smile. She also has helped NAWJ to recruit and involve new members. NAWJ is deeply grateful to Bunny for her enthusiastic support and tireless hard work.
this year has been an exciting one for me as well as for NAWJ. My presidency started right after 9/11, a day that cast shadows on all of us, particularly those of us in New York who, with spirit and leadership, resolved to replicate the 23rd Annual Conference, hoping you would come. We did, and you came, and we all had a tremendously exciting experience together.

One of the many highlights of the Conference was that the Honoree of the Year Award went to New York’s own Betty Weinberg Ellerin, a past NAWJ President, for her groundbreaking leadership and her continuing commitment to eradicating the insidious impact of gender bias that still effects women litigants in our courts in domestic violence cases, inadequate child support and unequal financial results after divorce. During the Conference, Justice Ellerin chaired the first meeting of state Gender Fairness Committees and Task Forces together with Task Force concept founder Norma Wikler and Lynn Hecht Shafran. And at this year’s Minneapolis Conference, 24 representatives attended the second annual Gender Fairness meeting, honoring Norma’s inspiring leadership and untimely death. Norma was also eulogized by Justice Rosalie Wahl at the Sunday brunch.

This year, NAWJ presented its Honoree of the Year in Minneapolis to another native and pioneer - Justice Diana Murphy - who is a role model for the Minnesota judges.

As in 1985, the Minnesotans welcomed us warmly, this time with a fashion show, the best cutting edge educational programs, early morning sightseeing walks and visits to the Walker Art and Science Museum.

And what happened in between the Conferences?

I reported to you in previous Counterbalances and submitted an eight page report at the conference (e-mail kmoskowi@courts.state.ny.us or call me at 212-374-8520 for a copy). The highlights include: a more experienced office staff under the leadership of Executive Director Connie Belfiore and Director of Operations Donna Campanella; increased computer capacity and a revamped the web site; expanded email lists to communicate opportunities to speak abroad, host visiting judges, sponsor NAWJ programs locally, etc.; and efforts to develop a computer based list of all women judges, judicial officers and administrative law judges in the United States (you can help to complete the list by contacting www.nawj.org or calling the office at 202-393-0222).

NAWJ has completed, is revising and is developing new educational and community outreach programs for you and your colleagues that would otherwise not be done.

I traveled and visited with some of you, as have other officers, and I have reached out to other bar associations and judges’ groups so that we can augment NAWJ’s impact on issues of common concern.

Forty-five of us attended the International Association of Women Judges’ 6th Biennial Meeting in Dublin, understanding that we as American judges need to learn about international law and treaties.

This summer, at an ABA meeting in Washington DC, I explained NAWJ’s 1988 support of CEDAW’s ratification. (At the 23rd Annual Conference, NAWJ resolved to continue that support.)

I was pleased to be the first NAWJ President invited to participate as a guest at both the midyear and annual meetings of the Conference of Chief Justices. It was exciting to meet so many of our members that have become Chief Judges - from Minnesota Chief Judge Kathleen A. Blatz to my state’s Chief Judge Judith S. Kaye, who is the Conference President, to about 15 others. It also was exciting to learn that many of our concerns and aims are shared by the Conference. This year would not have been possible without the support of so many NAWJ members - my colleagues in New York, NAWJ officers, district directors and committee chairs and members. Thank you!

I know that my successor, Justice Bea Ann Smith, will continue the programs and associations that keep NAWJ meaningful in today’s world.
Executive Director’s Report

Constance L. Belfiore, Esq.

Growth is exhilarating! Have you noticed the growth in this newsletter? You’ll find improved graphics, more concise text, and clearer photos, all ably directed by NAWJ’s Vice-President for Publications, Hon. Mel Flanagan. We are excited about this fresh look, and invite your comments.

The growth in the newsletter reflects the expansion occurring in the National Office. We have added professional and technical expertise to serve you better. Two years ago I was the only person on staff. Now we are six! (Thank you, A. A. Milne.) Our two Program Attorneys, Alexis Hill and Geoff Platnick, work hard on an increasing number of high quality education and special projects. Our new Director of Operations and Membership, Jeffrey Groton (see below), manages finances, office operations and membership. Lina Walker, our Membership Coordinator, is working to create our member database, and in January, Cristina Silva will join us as Assistant to the Executive Director. With the assistance of at least two interns each semester, activity here is booming, and NAWJ is growing in so many ways.

We have greatly improved on-line access! Now you can join NAWJ, register for the Annual Conference, and make Conference hotel reservations on-line. Soon you will be able to read Counterbalance, order our publications and access distance learning curricula via our website as well. VISA and MasterCard are accepted. Please visit us at www.nawj.org.

We are taking control of our membership data in-house, we now can provide accurate information and updated lists promptly. We also have a nation-wide membership e-mail distribution list available for selected communications of special interest to all members.

The energized Resource Board is actively pursuing increased financial support, and I am able to assist this worthy effort to ensure the longevity and widespread impact of NAWJ.

Finally, members of the media are becoming acquainted with NAWJ! Recently they have inquired about general judicial matters, such as the number of women judges and how they attain the bench. They also have asked about specific and timely issues, such as the results of the recent elections in which women became the majority on highest courts in Washington and Ohio (a feat preceded only by Minnesota in 1991-94).

Yes, NAWJ’s growth during the past two years is impressive! NAWJ is becoming a real powerhouse for addressing social justice issues, and a magnet for other groups - legal, social and political - who wish information and insight. NAWJ can continue to progress, however, only with the increased activity and devotion of its members. Please peruse this newsletter, and feel free to contact staff as well as Board Members to discuss your interests.

Jeffrey W. Groton, Director of Operations and Membership, since early December, returns to DC from NYC, where he was Business Manager for a management consulting firm. Prior to that he was Managing Director of HR and Administration for Envision EMI here in DC, where he worked closely with a large non-profit youth education program focusing on teaching students about legal careers.

A seasoned business executive, Jeffrey is leading us into the next stage of our development in financial, human resources, administrative and IT matters. He also is managing our membership data and outreach. He has hit the ground running, and is enjoying the challenges facing our growing organization.

2002 Annual Conference Highlights
Removing Obstacles To Justice For Immigrants

Geoffrey S. Platnick, NAWJ Program Attorney

The Removing Obstacles to Justice for Immigrants educational curriculum and training manual is now available for national distribution. The curriculum provides a forum for judges to develop a fundamental understanding of immigration law, identify important issues affecting immigrants, and develop a well-reasoned approach to the issues surrounding immigrants in court. The program is free for NAWJ members. The only expense will be a $25 shipping fee.

In addition to the printed curriculum, NAWJ will unveil an online distance-learning component of the program on February 1, 2003. This is a complete one-day (8 hour) training session available over the internet and/or CD-ROM. To receive the training via the internet, judges may access our website at www.nawj.org, click on the relevant link, purchase the program, and train over their internet at their convenience. This amazing technology offers a variety of convenient features. The expert presenter can be viewed and heard as her/his lecture is transcribed and the accompanying PowerPoint slideshow is presented. Links to primary sources are available and the program allows the viewer to type notes during the presentation.

The internet and CD-ROM programs include outlines of essential points for each subject area: Immigration 101; Criminal Consequences of Conviction and Sentencing on Immigration Status and Naturalization Eligibility of Non-Citizens; The Violence Against Women Act; and Language and Cultural Considerations. PowerPoint presentations and handouts may be downloaded and saved for a later date and a self-test is available to test the viewer before and after the program. Additionally, there are selected statutes and background materials available for further in-depth review, and a certificate of completion is available after the program.

If you are interested in coordinating a training session in your jurisdiction, and would like a training manual, or if you would like to learn more about accessing the program session using the Internet or CD-ROM, please contact the National Office.

Diana Eagon, for their extensive support. If you would like a video copy of the plenary please contact Alexis K. Hill in the National Office.

History Project

Alexis K. Hill, NAWJ Program Attorney

Thank you to the numerous NAWJ members who shared their recollections and reflections for the NAWJ history book! If you would like to order a copy for yourself, your alma mater or your local law school library, please contact Alexis K. Hill in the National Office.
The Color of Justice Program Goes National

Hon. Brenda Stith Loftin

The goal of the Project Development Committee is to debut the Color of Justice program across the country on Law Day 2003. We invite all NAWJ members and District Directors to request a Color of Justice manual from the NAWJ office in Washington, DC, and begin planning for an event that will encourage and motivate our youth to consider the law and judgships as career goals.

The Color of Justice program has many advantages. It benefits our youth, our communities, NAWJ members, and our organization. The pilot programs that were presented in St. Louis and New Jersey proved that the program can be a smashing success. Specifically, the program has deep impact upon the students who have never had the opportunity to visit a college campus or a law school. Student program evaluations revealed that students left excited and grateful to have been chosen to participate in such a program.

Also, a survey of participating judges indicated that they felt a deep sense of appreciation for being able to give back to their communities in such a unique and fun way. Particularly, the survey of women judges indicated how much they enjoyed sharing their life experiences with students. Moreover, it gave the judges a chance to learn more about their colleagues and catch up on the latest judicial news in their circuits and counties.

Let’s take NAWJ to a new level and illustrate through a sampling of our superior educational programs the commitment that each NAWJ member has to their community. It’s time we showcase NAWJ and our learned, talented, and community-minded members. Make a difference on Law Day 2003 by presenting the Color of Justice program in your area.

A new Color of Justice manual is available through NAWJ’s National Office and is free to members. If you would like to obtain a copy, please contact the National Office ASAP. For help in planning a program, you may contact Judge Brenda Stith Loftin or Judge Barbara Peebles in St. Louis, Missouri or Judge Shirley Tolentino in New Jersey.

PRESENTING MEDICAL EVIDENCE IN AN ADULT RAPE TRIAL

A New Video Resource

Lynn Hecht Schafran, Esq.

The National Judicial Education Program (NJEP) announces an important new resource for education about rape trials that is focused on prosecutors but is also relevant to judges, police, probation departments, victim advocates and medical personnel.

Presenting Medical Evidence in an Adult Rape Trial is the first video to capture part of NJEP’s highly regarded model curriculum Understanding Sexual Violence: Prosecuting Adult Rape and Sexual Assault Cases. An online version of the complete curriculum is available on the Department of Justice Violence Against Women Office website at www.vaw.umn.edu/FinalDocuments/usvpros.asp.

The video/self-study guide was developed under a grant from the Department of Justice Violence Against Women Office. The model curriculum from which it was drawn, also funded by the Violence Against Women Office, was developed at the request of judges nationwide who asked NJEP to adapt its model judicial education curriculum on rape trials to create a similar program for prosecutors.

Presenting Medical Evidence in an Adult Rape Trial runs one hour, fifty minutes in total length and is divided into ten independent segments. Each segment presents a prosecutor interviewing an expert in a particular area dealing with the presentation of medical evidence in an adult victim rape trial. The segments cover the most up-to-date research available and present it in a clear, concise, useable format geared specifically for prosecutors. Although not a trial manual, there are concrete examples as well as sections with specific guidance for sex crimes prosecutors.

Next October 2003, the 25th Annual Conference of NAWJ will be held in Washington, DC. This meeting also will mark 15 years since 50 women judges from around the world came together in Washington with judges of NAWJ for an exchange of ideas about the position of women in the judiciary and the unique problems around the globe faced by women seeking justice.

In recognition of these two momentous anniversaries, the Conference theme, “Justice in America – Justice in the World,” is designed to place the examination of American law within the context of a larger global picture. The educational programs will explore the application of international law and its affect on domestic cases around the world, the status of civil rights and civil liberties in the United States in the aftermath of September 11 and other terrorist acts, the burgeoning challenge of juvenile women in the justice system, and other topics of current interest.

The 25th Annual Conference will begin on Wednesday, October 8, with the traditional evening welcoming reception and end on Sunday, October 12, with a formal breakfast. It will be held at the elegant Mayflower Hotel in downtown Washington, within a short distance of the White House and the monuments and museums on the Mall. A reception at the United States Supreme Court is planned for Friday evening, and a gala celebration dinner with members of the area women’s lawyers groups is planned for Thursday evening.

The perspective of judges from around the world will add a fascinating element to what promises to be a truly unique Annual Conference. Please fill out the registration form either opposite this page or on our web site, www.nawj.org. Early indications of who will be attending is vital to planning the conference, and the lack of early notice is one of the most troublesome challenges faced by the host committee every year. I look forward to seeing you all of you in October!

LexisNexis and NAWJ recently have signed a five-year contract to become partners in the area of legal research, scholarship funding, publishing, and Annual Conference sponsorship. Our own Resource Board members Matt Cegelis and Vicky Cashman championed this agreement for the benefit of NAWJ and its members.

The agreement provides for generous use of LexisNexis research by the staff and leaders of NAWJ to create and update its educational curricula and other programs. Additionally, the partnership provides at least $25,000 per year in sponsorship of the NAWJ Annual Award Dinner, funding of the Annual Program Scholarship contest, and financial support for publication of future bench booklets and bench cards.

As was evidenced by LexisNexis’ participation in this year’s Annual Conference, LexisNexis is as proud to be a partner with NAWJ, as NAWJ is proud to be LexisNexis’ partner. During the Conference, LexisNexis hosted and funded the Saturday reception and awards banquet (see photos, pages 6-7), and provided the attendees pens, constitution mini-booklets, and lanyards.

Once again, we would like to thank LexisNexis for its generous support of NAWJ and its members.

District 1 ME, MA, NH, PR, RI

Hon. Fernande Duffy

District 1 members extend their appreciation to outgoing District Director, Hon. Patricia Bernstein, for her support of local members of the NAWJ, contributions to Counterbalance recognizing the achievements of our members, and dinner meetings honoring women judges newly appointed to the bench.

We also wish to announce, with deep regret, the deaths during the past year of two great friends and dear colleagues: Hon. Eileen P. Griffin on October 11, 2001, and Hon. Sheila E. McGovern on November 12, 2002. Judge Griffin served as First Justice of the Palmer, MA District Court before her appointment to the Superior Court, where she was the third woman appointed to serve in that capacity. Judge McGovern, appointed to the bench in 1974, served for many years as First Justice of the Middlesex Probate and Family Court.

District 1 members who attended the recent NAWJ Annual Conference in Minneapolis included (from Massachusetts) Hon. Ruth Abrams (ret.); Hon. Rya W. Zobel (on recall); Hon. Elizabeth Porada; Hon. Fernande R.V. Duffy; Hon. Martha Grace; Hon. Ellen Flatley; and (from Rhode Island) Hon. Marjorie Yashar. Our informal discussions at the Conference with Judge Yashar have led to plans, now in the making with the assistance of Hon. Maureen McKenna Goldberg, for a joint regional meeting to be held in Rhode Island in late winter or early spring, 2003. We encourage members from Massachusetts and Rhode Island to attend this event and to invite other women judges to attend. Anyone wishing to participate in the planning of the MA/RI joint regional conference, or in planning such a conference with judges in Maine, New Hampshire or Puerto Rico, should contact the District Director at fernande.duffy@appct.state.ma.us.

District 1 welcomes new member, Hon. Sally Kelly.

Hon. Ruth Abrams (ret.) was honored in October, 2002 by The Supreme Judicial Court Historical Society, upon the occasion of the creation of the “Hon. Ruth I. Abrams Endowment for Women in the Law,” honoring the first woman justice of the SJC.

Hon. Nancy Dusek-Gomez was recently honored as a jurist at a Red Mass conducted by the St. Thomas Moore Society.

The Women’s Bar Association presented its annual Lelia J. Robinson Award to Hon. Aileen H. Belford, (ret.) who was presiding justice of the Fall River District Court.

The Herbert P. Wilkins Annual Appellate Year-in-Review will be presented this year by Hon. Martha B. Sosman.

Pursuant to a grant from the U. S. State Department, the following women judges traveled to Mongolia and China as part of a judicial education exchange, a joint program of the Massachusetts Judges Conference, the McCormack Institute of Public Affairs and the Institute for Transitional Economies: Hon. Nonnie Burnes; Hon. Rebekah Crampton; Hon. Patricia Curtin; Hon. Elizabeth Fahey; Hon. Wendie Gershengorn; Hon. Bertha Josephson; Hon. Judith Nelson Diday.

U.S. District Court Judge Rya W. Zobel was the recipient of the ABA’s Margaret Brent Women Lawyers of Achievement Award.

Remember, there is so much to do in our Nation’s Capital; you may want to request additional leave for either the days preceding or following the Conference dates. In fact, your family may choose to accompany you. Our Host Committee is gathering materials for all the wonderful sites to see and things to do.

Hon. Marielsa Bernard reported on project development concerning the Status of Girls in the Justice System. The committee, co-chaired by Hon. Teena Grodner, will be making a presentation of its work at the 2003 Annual Conference; hopefully other Districts throughout the country will be able to replicate the committee’s efforts. Don’t miss this educational program! Who knows, Marielsa could receive another National award – if we can keep her out of the restroom!

New District officers were elected as a result of the resignation of our former District Director Hon. Fern Saddler. Fern had resigned to have more time to care for her mother. Sadly, her mother died just days before our meeting. Our thoughts are with her. We extended our appreciation for the attendance of members Hon. Theresa Nolan and Commissioner Lauren Sfekas, each widowed since our last meeting. Our new Treasurer also took up a collection for a contribution to the National Office in memory of Hon. Ismene Kalaris and Patricia Kirkwood, members who died recently.

After much business – but a wonderful evening of food, drink, and comradery – Judge Diana Motz of the U.S. Circuit Court (4th Circuit) addressed the need for NAWJ, both at its inception and today. She brilliantly and eloquently broached the subject of our achievements and the complexity of being women jurists of such high achievement – the benefits, as well as the personal sacrifices. I felt she was speaking directly to me. Just recently, I bought a sign that I proudly posted in my study, stating: “Incredible as it seems, my life is based on a true story.” Judge Motz gently reminded us to take time for ourselves.

District 4 was well represented by some twenty-five members at the Minneapolis Conference. We very much appreciated the efforts and hospitality of our hosts, as we took notes for 2003. Since returning, there have been Host Committee meetings, and Justices Sandra Day O’Connor and Ruth Bader Ginsberg have agreed to host a reception at the U.S. Supreme Court on Friday, October 10, 2003.

Finally, a reception and dinner with Senator Patrick Leahy was held on Wednesday, November 13, in the Mike Mansfield Room of the U.S. Capitol. Though the chairmanship is no longer Senator Leahy’s, in light of the election returns, the eyes of the nation are on the Senate Judiciary and the handling of the Federal Bench nominees. We enjoyed meeting with Senator Leahy and listening to his views on this timely topic. I wish each of you could have joined us.

Remember, the MAYFLOWER HOTEL, October 8 - 12, 2003. You won’t want to miss it!

The following judges graciously volunteered their time to the Truancy Court Diversion Project, a volunteer program which holds “court” at local schools on a weekly basis in order to decrease unexcused absences and tardiness, decrease days suspended, improve G.P.A., and increase promotion to the next grade level: Hon. Susan Block, Hon. Mary Rhodes Russell, Hon. Ellen Levy Siwak, Hon. Sandra Farragut-Hemphill, Hon. Anna Forder, Hon. Thea Sherry, Hon Mary Pat Schroeder, and Hon. Gloria Reno.

Saint Louis University School of Law will honor Hon. Gloria Clark Reno and Hon. Ellen Levy Siwak at their Women Law Students’ Association Annual Judges Reception on November 12, 2002.

The Hon. Barbara Wallace recently returned from a trip to Australia where she cheered on her husband Ken Rinderknecht, as he played on the United States Basketball team in the Master Games, garnering a silver medal.

Iowa: State District Court Hon. Linda Reade of Des Moines has advanced a significant step forward in the nomination process to the United Stated District Court for the Northern District of Iowa. Reade previously received the American Bar Association’s highest rating.

District Court Hon. Lynn Brady of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, died July 4, 2002, after a lengthy battle with brain cancer. Brady's retirement was featured in the previous issue of Counterbalance, where her many achievements were noted. These include being Iowa's first female District Associate Judge, first woman judge in the Sixth Judicial District, and first woman president of the Iowa Judges Association. At the time of her retirement Brady was the longest serving judge on the bench in the state of Iowa. She was appointed in 1973. In 2000 she received the Award of Merit from the Iowa Judges Association.

Hon. Eliza Ovrom facilitated programming for a group of Russians visiting Iowa as part of the Open World/Russian Leadership Program in October. The Friendship Force of Greater Des Moines acted as coordinator for the group’s visit. The 14 Russians were educators from various parts of Russia. The group toured the local juvenile detention facility and the Polk County Courthouse, and met with the Juvenile Judge Constance Cohen to discuss the juvenile court system in the U.S.

District Court Hon. Karen Romano of Des Moines was a member of a committee that made recommendations to the Iowa Supreme Court concerning courtroom interpreters’ qualifications. The committee’s recommendations were adopted by the Supreme Court in October, and include a code of professional conduct for interpreters, standardized oaths for interpreters, and education for judges and court staff concerning cultural issues and differences. Romano also chairs the courthouse security committee that is responsible for adoption and implementation of the courthouse security measures in the Polk County Courthouse in Des Moines.

United States Magistrate Judge Hon. Celeste Bremer of Des Moines has completed her dissertation and expects to be awarded her doctorate in Adult Education from the Drake University School of Education in November. Judge Bremer’s dissertation topic is “The Impact of a Mentoring Program on Occupational Stress, Personal Strain, and Coping Resources of Newly Appointed U.S. Magistrate Judges.” One of the findings of the dissertation is that female judges reported significantly higher levels of stress and lower levels of coping skills than male judges in the study. Mentoring was found to lower stress levels. Copies of the dissertation are available by contacting Hon. Celeste Bremer, U. S. Courthouse, 123 E. Walnut St., Des Moines, Iowa 50309.

A Dispatch from the Western Frontier

Hon. Valorie Cooke

We held our NAWJ reception on October 10th in conjunction with the monthly meeting of Northern Nevada Women Lawyers Association. The program was a panel discussion about “The Changing Face of Justice.”

The members of the panel were Justices Miriam Shearing, Nancy Becker, and Deborah Agosti, who are all members of the Nevada Supreme Court and members of NAWJ. I served as moderator for the panel. We discussed the early days of law practice in Nevada, sharing stories about being the first women judges in the state. Miriam, Nancy and Deborah have spent many years on the bench, so they were truly pioneers for women in the legal profession. We discussed changes in the judiciary and legal profession in the past twenty years, the role of women as catalysts for change, and sobering comments on the work we still must do to advance women in the legal profession.

There were many young women lawyers present at the reception, which was great since it gave them an opportunity to hear from the women who have paved the way for them. All of us on the panel stressed the importance of networking, both as women attorneys and judges, since it has proven such an effective means of supporting one another, both personally and professionally. We told a lot of great war stories about the discrimination we encountered as attorneys and judges, and Miriam talked about her longtime association with NAWJ and how helpful it has been to her over the years.

It was a very nice evening, and I think all of us enjoyed taking time to reflect on the journey women have made in the legal profession in Nevada and the work that remains to be done. We stressed to the younger women present that they must not think that all of the work has been done for women in our profession and that they have a responsibility to themselves and to the profession to continue to recognize the hurdles that still exist for women in the law and to overcome them.

North Las Vegas Judge Natalie Tyrrell attended her first NAWJ Annual Conference this year in Minneapolis, thereby doubling the average attendance from that state! Nevada Supreme Court Justice Miriam Shearing attended per usual and reported at the Board of Directors meeting on plans for the 2006 Annual Conference, which is scheduled in Las Vegas. Miriam and Nancy Saita are chairpersons for the Conference.

District 14 members in attendance at the Minneapolis meeting voted to sponsor a foreign judge to next year’s Conference in Washington, DC. Judge Judy Chirlin will head up the committee to select a woman bench officer from an Eastern European country. Historically, Eastern European women judges have been underrepresented at IAWJ meetings. The goal is to select someone who will go home and organize women judges in her country.

Governor Gray Davis of California, who was honored at the conference with a resolution commending his appointment of many qualified women to the bench, appointed six judges during the conference, half of whom were women!

According to Margie Carter, 125% of the Orange County Judges in attendance at Minneapolis have registered for the NAWJ Conference in Washington, D.C. next October.

Alameda County Judge Peggy Hora is at it again in the grandmother business with two granddaughters joining her four grandsons this spring. Congratulations!

Recent gubernatorial appointments in California are Deborah Christian, Monica Bachner, Charline Olmedo, Jacqueline Nguyen, Tammy Chung Ryu, and Gloria L. White-Brown of Los Angeles; Jo-Lynne Q. Lee and Theresa Canepa of Alameda; Josephine Tucker of Orange County; Hillary A. Chittick of Fresno; Elisabeth Sichel of Riverside; Elizabeth Humphreys of San Joaquin; Pamela Smith-Sward of Sacramento; Adreienne Grover of Monterey; DeAnn M. Salcido of San Diego; and Terrie L. Jackson of San Francisco.

Judy Chirlin was the recipient of the Women Lawyers of Los Angeles’ prestigious Ernestine Stahlhut Award in September.

Peggy Hora has been nominated for the Ben Aranda Access to Justice Award. In addition to writing a chapter on drug courts in the third edition of Principles of Addiction Medicine and the introduction to Drug Use and Misuse, she is one of three judges to whom Professors David Wexler and Bruce Winick are dedicating their new book, Judging in the Therapeutic Key. All this and she managed trips to Thailand and Copper Canyon, Mexico, this year.

Valerie Cooke held a reception for members and prospective members in Reno. Miriam Shearing reported it a success even though a thief had made off with the “The Changing Face of Justice” video.

Jo-Lynne Lee, recent appointee, is the first Chinese-American attorney to serve as a judge in Alameda County.

Elizabeth Allen White served as Adjunct Faculty this semester, teaching Civil Discovery at Loyola Law School. She and her cousin, Judge Isabella Horton Grant, retired from the San Francisco Superior Court, plan to be in Washington next year.

My sources tell me that Jacqueline Nguyen is the first Vietnamese-American judge appointed to the bench.

Carol Lam, formerly a San Diego Superior Court judge, has been confirmed as the US Attorney for San Diego, the first woman to hold that post in San Diego.

Court of Appeal Presiding Justice Mildred L. Lillie died in October after 55 years as a judicial officer. A woman pioneer in the legal profession, she was the longest serving judge in California history. She was 87 years old.

In addition to being your director and president (of California and Nevada Women Judges), I spent two weeks this summer in Korea with my daughter, the angel child. Highlights of the trip included meeting Chrissy’s foster mother who cared for Chrissy the first four months of her life, which is when she came to America. It is a beautiful country with friendly, gracious people.

Finally, I am delighted to report that all the women judge incumbents in Nevada won in this year’s elections. Most of the incumbents didn’t even have opposition. In addition we increased the number of women judges in the district courts (general jurisdiction) by five. The new women judges in Las Vegas are Jackie Glass, Jessie Walsh, Valerie Adair, and Jennifer Elliott. In Reno, Frances Doherty, a juvenile court master, was elected to district court. They all deserve congratulations for well-run races.
A Time Remembered
for Resource Board Member Robert Kaufman

Geoffrey S. Platnick, NAWJ Program Attorney

Two baskets, 42 soupspoons, and a 10-by-13 foot carpet were among the items listed on the property form by Robert Kaufman’s father in 1938. Mr. Kaufman was required to itemize and surrender these personal possessions according to Nazi law prior to “camp relocation,” at which time his possessions were to be deposited into a Swiss bank for safekeeping. These items were never returned.

Robert Kaufman, prominent New York attorney and NAWJ Resource Board member, is among the nearly 40,000 people who have filed claims under a 1.25 billion dollar settlement of a class action filed on behalf of Holocaust victims. The claim is that Swiss banks maintained a practice of “withholding or misstating account information” when inquiries were received from survivors or family members. The banks have argued that such actions were aberrations rather than standard policy—a court tribunal found differently. Robert Kaufman was among the first 500 claimants to receive payments from the settlement for claims of lost or looted Nazi-era bank accounts.

The judge in the case set up a tribunal in Zurich to review claims. It is there that the 60 employees of the tribunal compare all the information provided by claimants with unpublished bank records and government filings. The tribunal lawyers sometimes evoke powerful emotions when they call survivors to gather information. These people “are sitting in their houses doing their everyday activities,” said a lawyer who helps run the tribunal, “and then you call them and you take them back 60 years.”

Robert Kaufman’s journey through memories of long-ago began when a distant relative told him that she noticed the names of his relatives on a published list of people who had once held Swiss accounts. Although he certainly knew of the Holocaust lawsuit, he had no idea that it would have anything to do with him. “Sixty years and suddenly this appears,” he said. “I think I had tears in my eyes all day.”

He thereafter sketched out a family tree, retrieved death certificates, reviewed the 1938 property form, and relived the terrifying days of the Holocaust.

During the month of December 1938, little Bobby Kaufman, then only nine years old, had been sent to England by train to escape the coming nightmare—he was sent alone. Later the next year, his mother, sister, and aunt were lucky enough to escape to England as well. However, Bobby’s father, Mr. Kaufman, would not be joining the family in England. He had been arrested and sent to the concentration camp at Dachau.

As terrifying an experience as this was for all family members, Robert’s family was one of the fortunate ones to have a loved one return from the camps alive. Mr. Kaufman would join the family in England after a delay of many years, yet, Mr. Kaufman would be forever changed. Robert said that his father had always been a remote man, but became much more reserved upon his emergence from Dachau. From England, the entire family moved to the United States and Robert’s father, once a successful importer in Vienna, never adjusted to the country he had been forced to adopt. He died in 1976, never having the possessions listed on his 1938 property form returned.

This past summer, Robert Kaufman received an award in the amount of $200,000 from the tribunal because neither his father, nor his family, ever received his deposited items or funds. When he received the check, Robert decided not to keep the money, but to use it for the benefit refugees and immigrants, like his aunt, mother, grandmother, and sister, who had opened similar bank accounts so many years ago. It took more than 60 years, said Robert Kaufman, for the small step of returning money to the people who owned it. “And almost all the people to whom it happened,” he said wistfully, “are dead.”

Robert Kaufman, now a partner at Proskauer Rose LLP in New York City, has been an active and dedicated member of NAWJ’s Resource Board for many years. NAWJ is grateful for his continuous support and friendship.
id you know that thousands of U.S. judges have jurisdiction to apply international treaties? Unlike many treaties negotiated and executed by diplomats, several of the Hague Conventions are designed to be implemented by the judiciary. If you sit on a state or federal trial court, one treaty you may be asked to interpret is the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction (Hague Convention) in order to resolve a case involving the transport of a child across international borders. To assist trial judges, NAWJ members are working to develop an international jurisprudence around the use and interpretation of this Convention.

The Hague Convention became applicable in the U.S. in 1988 with the passage of the International Child Abduction Remedies Act (ICARA 42 U.S.C. §11601 et. seq.), and has been ratified by 64 nations. The primary purpose of the Convention is to deter international child abduction and provide for the prompt return of children less than 16 years of age whose custody is in dispute to their place of “habitual residence.” Rather than a substantive vehicle to determine custody disputes, the Convention is intended to be a provisional remedy to restore the status quo ante; it can be invoked by the filing of an action in an appropriate court where the child is then located. In deciding whether a child should be returned to the state of habitual residence, the court must consider first whether there has been a wrongful removal or retention of the child. This inquiry requires both a determination of the place of habitual residence, which is not defined by the Convention, as well as an ascertainment of the custody rights applicable to the child immediately before the removal. In addition, the court may consider five narrowly defined defenses to the action, including whether the request for return has been delayed for more than one year, whether return of the child would expose it to a grave risk of harm or otherwise place the child in an intolerable situation, or whether return of the child would be contrary to the fundamental principles of human rights and freedoms of the forum state.

Approximately 1,600 Convention cases are decided worldwide each year. Many of these result in children being sent back to a country in accord with certain “undertakings” or stipulations imposed by the sending country. For example, a U.S. court may send a child back to the country of habitual residence provided that the petitioning parent pay transportation costs, or to take action to minimize emotional trauma to the child. However, enforcement of these undertakings in the courts of the state to which the child is ordered returned is difficult to obtain and to measure. This is one of the many fascinating areas of the law that NAWJ member Judge Shireen Avis Fisher is studying in her research concerning international judicial cooperation in the implementation of the Convention.

Judge Fisher is studying for her Ph.D at University College, London. As part of her L.L.M degree in International Human Rights Law, Judge Fisher came to recognize that the key to implementing the Hague Convention is effective communication between judges from different judicial systems in different countries. “Careful adjudication of international abduction cases involves more than just an understanding of the black letter of the Convention. It also involves consideration of issues related to judicial comity, human rights, child safety and gender and cultural bias,” Fisher states.

To further this goal she urges, “Judges should be sharing their decisions with one another.” This kind of communication requires establishing a network for judges to create an on-going dialogue that is ethically appropriate and effective. Fisher confident “NAWJ and IAWJ have the structure in place to both educate judges and form a network of judges with specific expertise to handle the Hague Convention cases. International parental abduction is too important not to have judges with a developed expertise.”

NAWJ is developing judicial training materials about the application of the Hague Convention in U.S. courts. If you have adjudicated a case pursuant to the Convention, please contact Judge Fisher directly via email at safisher1@yahoo.com, or by post at:
