MEMORIAL LECTURE

Chief Justice Amy Nechtem (ret). delivered the 24th Annual James J. St. Germain Memorial Lecture at Merrimack College presented by The Department of Political Science and Public Policy and the International Studies Program. Chief Nechtem writes: "Congratulations to the Political Science National Honor Society Inductees for their outstanding academic achievements. I share Professor Emeritus St. Germain's commitment to public service, civic engagement and society's shared responsibility in governance and public policy. My lecture entitled, "The Future We Owe Our Children: Building a World of Opportunity and Hope", is a call to action in furtherance of the health and wellbeing of our most vulnerable populations. Each of us plays a role in realizing a world where every child is safe, happy and healthy. Prevention and intervention innovative connections, upstream, matter. They have the power to change a life. I am grateful to the leadership of Merrimack College and its vibrant community, for the distinct privilege to discuss this critical topic."

HONORARY DEGREE

Chief Justice Amy Blake delivered the keynote speech at New England Law Boston's Law Day Banquet where she also received an Honorary Doctor of Laws. Her speech amplified the Law Day Theme of E Pluribus Unum, "Out of Many, One."
