

Brianna Rosier Kabwika is a fellow at Our Children's Trust. Brianna received a B.S. in Criminal Justice with a minor in Statistics from the University of Central Florida in 2013. After graduating, she worked as a paraprofessional in a special education school, working specifically with students with autism. These experiences led Brianna to seek ways to fight systemic injustices perpetrated against vulnerable individuals. On that path, Brianna obtained a J.D. from Brigham Young University in 2019. Prior to joining Our Children's Trust, Brianna worked for a small firm in southeast Idaho. Her practice focused on immigration removal defense and appeals, as well as, criminal defense for indigent individuals. When she is not working, Brianna enjoys spending time with her family, trying to learn new languages, reading, taking walks, and practicing yoga.
